

Faculty
of Arts

Child and Family Mediascape Research Group

Child and Family Mediascape Research Group – at a glance

We are a University of Melbourne research group helping create a safe and socially responsive mediascape for children and their families in Australia through research and engagement.

Our research objectives

- Investigate the interplay of traditional and digital media in families' lives
- Produce publications and reports to contribute valuable insights to the field
- Foster collaboration and knowledge exchange through scholarly networks
- Influence policymaking and platform governance around children's media use

Impacts of our work

- Building the evidence base for children's reading and screen use pre- and post-COVID through nationwide surveys and interviews of caregivers and librarians
- Delivering accessible outputs that inform decision making
- Translating insights on family media use into practical guidance

Ways we can work together

- Partner on research projects on family media use
- Co-design projects on children's reading and digital habits
- Available for training, workshops, and tailored reports
- Collaborate on family-facing educational events and expert panels

Partner with us

Contact: Associate Professor Wonsun Shin and Associate Professor Sybil Nolan
Email: Arts-CFMRG@unimelb.edu.au
Find an Expert: Associate Professor Wonsun Shin
LinkedIn: Associate Professor Sybil Nolan

Scan the QR code
for more information

